

The background of the page is a complex, abstract geometric pattern. It consists of various shapes, including rectangles, triangles, and lines, arranged in a way that suggests a staircase or a series of steps. The colors used are primarily yellow, orange, pink, and red, with some white and light blue accents. The pattern is composed of solid colored areas and thin yellow outlines. The overall effect is vibrant and modern.

ARCHITECTEN

Jij en het Paradijs

De bever architecten organized the exhibition “Jij en het Paradijs” for the Dutch Design Week 2021, inviting people to join the conversation about “Jij en het Paradijs”.

The exhibition challenged visitors to think about their ideal society and the way we like to live together. We talked to many visitors about their ideals, about paradise and life in general. Some needed time to put their thoughts on paper, others were quick to articulate their paradise. Almost all of them were inspired by what others had written or drawn. It has created a chain of concatenated messages.

In this book, you will find the messages in different languages. If possible, we translated them into English. We’ve categorized the posts by the number of times words were used.

All messages can be found in this book from page 30 to page 105 subdivided into 5 themes: me, nature, things, not, we.

We hope that you are inspired by the many messages just like us and we wish you a lot of fun reading!

A very special thanks to all visitors of DDW21!

Stefan de Bever

More than 1000 people have visited the exhibition and exchanged ideas with us, almost 700 have left a written message in the exhibition. We layout the book without any connection between the pictures and the messages people left individually or in groups.

paradise

Since the dawn of time - and in every country - we've dreamed of a perfect, happier place. A place we once lived and want to return to. A distant place, both in time and space, which has always been a model for the development of cultures and society. Through our collective effort and reflection can we reach our complex society and bring it closer to Paradise.

We invite you to step inside our pattern of arrows and follow the multiple directions to Paradise.

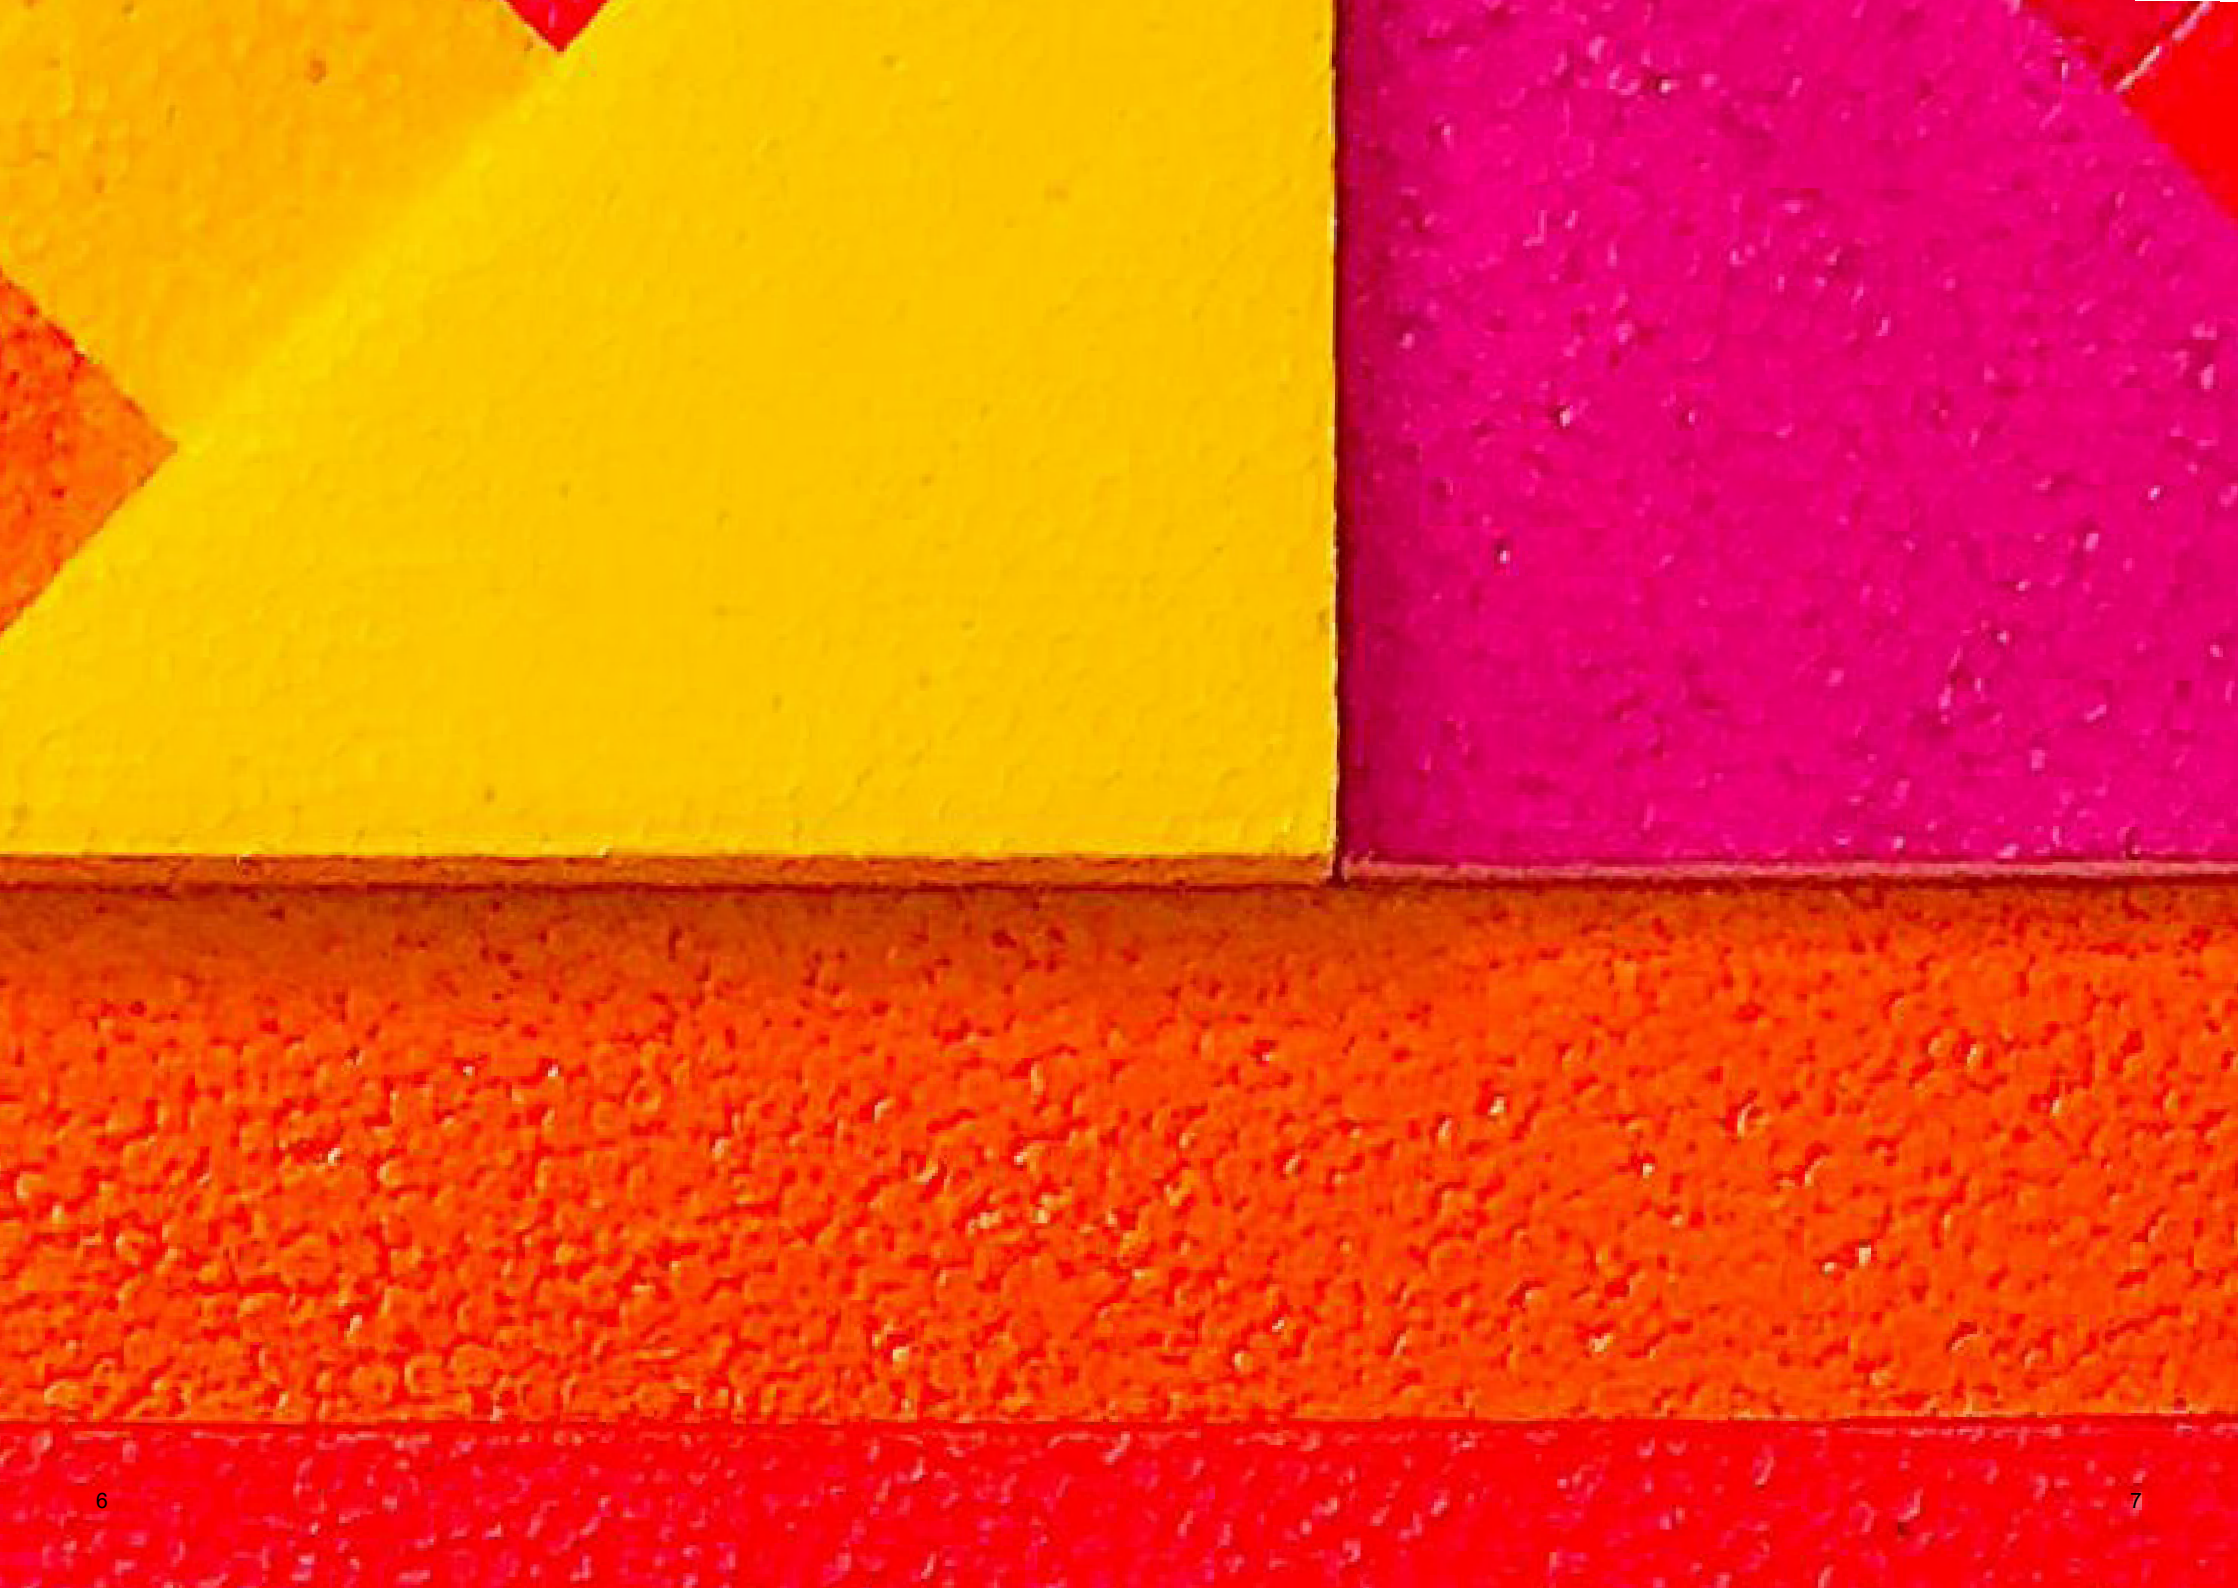

Ask yourself: what is Paradise? Where is Paradise? What is the value of Paradise? Who are You in Paradise?

These questions will take you back in time, through different countries and cultures, showing how the idea of paradise was transformed throughout history – reaching even the utopias of the modern era. This approach allows us to share and grow the current utopia!

JIJ
HET

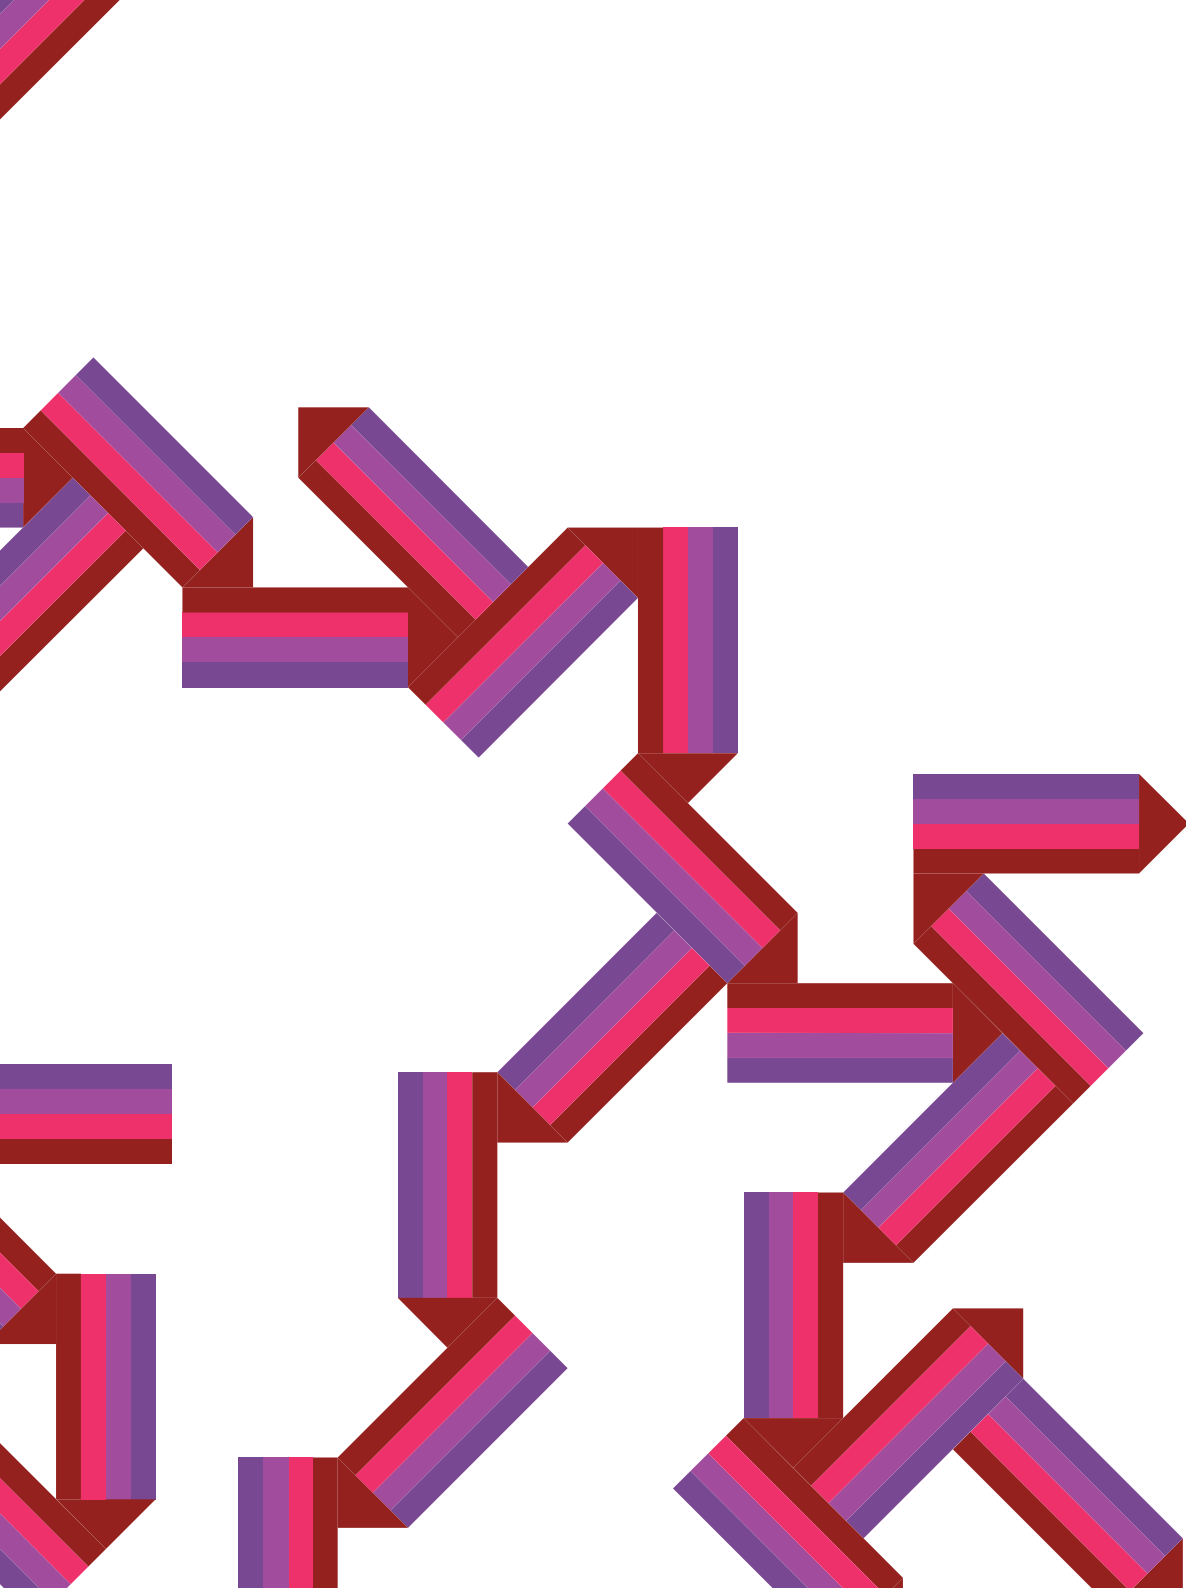

exhibition

Visitors could take part in a conversation and make a statement by leaving a message. We placed all thoughts and comments in a pattern of arrows, formed by a triangle and a set of 4 lines. The 4 lines are symbolizing nature: the 4 directions, the 4 seasons, the 4 elements. In addition, the number 4 is a recurring theme in religious and methodological texts, with 4 rivers as the image of Paradise. This pattern also illustrates the different roads taken to Paradise. As more and more messages were added, the pattern grew, creating a multiple, collective interpretation of “Jij en het Paradijs”!

Maybe your thoughts raise questions, maybe you have questions about Paradise of your own... The answers won't be obvious, but the sum of all thoughts and questions will create this multiple Paradise. The theme of Dutch Design Week, “The Greater Number”, is reflected in the number of questions and hopefully, also the answers that visitors give and receive during this exhibition.

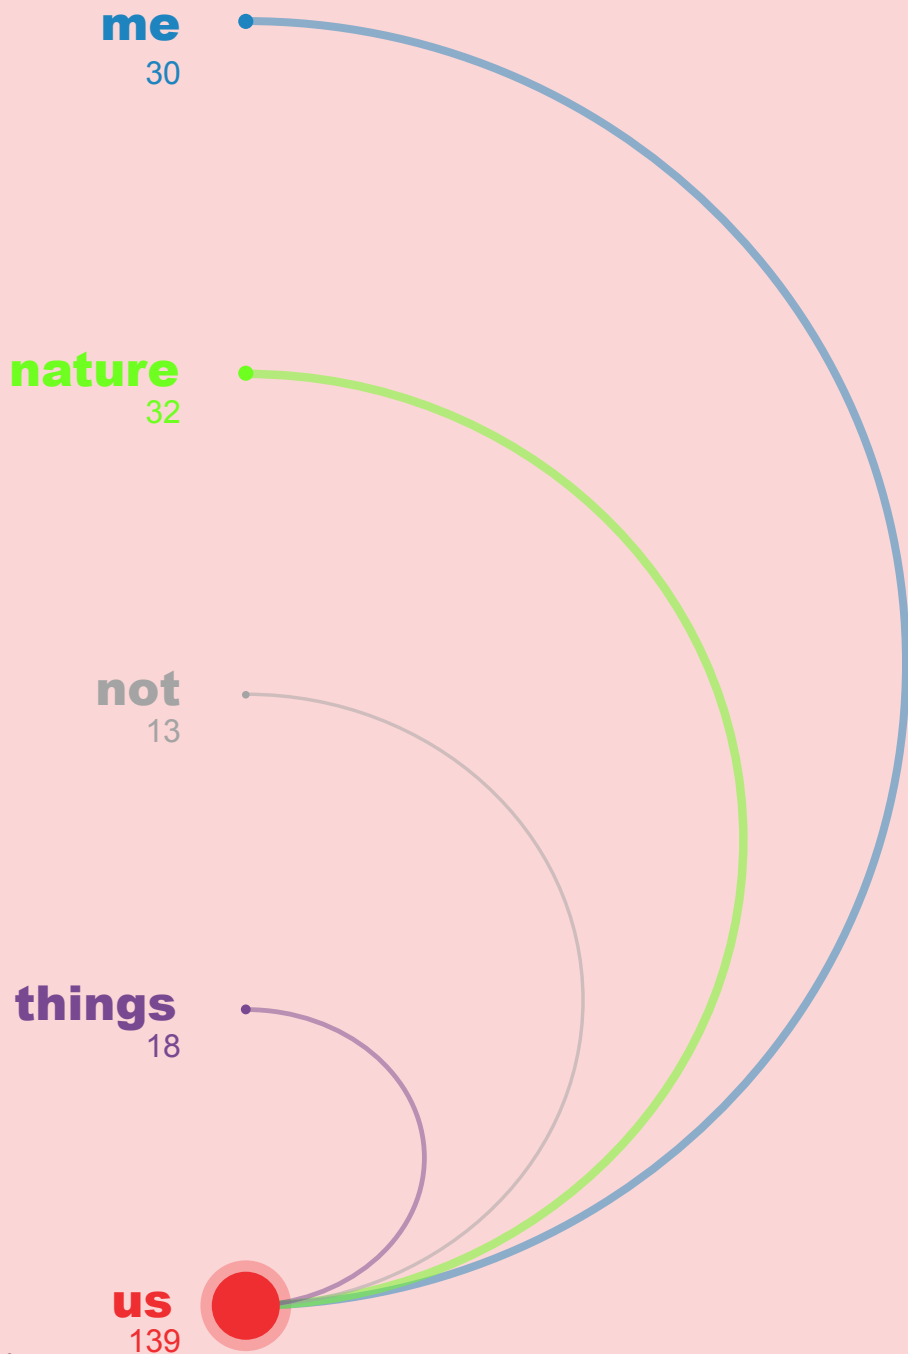

reflection

During the Dutch Design Week 2021, it was my pleasure to witness everyone's sharing concerning "Jij en het Paradijs". I came to be a part of this exhibition through understanding the process for the spatial design and the openness to discuss the relationship with paradise. At the start, my interest was directed to the built environment, and how others would see paradise in terms of the exterior world. But, as a pleasant surprise, visitors confronted this challenge through more personal introspection and subjective intimacy of desires, gratitude, and optimism. Thus, this experience arose in me the question: Is paradise the world interior, rather than the world exterior?

Visitors made this exhibition a success, and to clarify; people gave the meaning of paradise as it jumped off historical, religious, mythological, and spiritual distinctions, to a more prominent meaning in real-time. A time and space built on sharing, without ideas of good and bad, authentic or non-authentic, etc. Through interacting with one another, the meaning of paradise engraved commonality, personhood, and openness.

Commonality, in the enriching conversations that were stimulated by a few words, or the few minutes needed to think about "Jij en het Paradijs". Personhood, because of the inspiring messages of human quality and uniqueness that make us thrive for betterment. Openness, a point in reflection that leads new insights to take root, and the honest change that can come to be in the immediate now. The world exterior is a projection of the world interior, it seems through interaction, the common view of paradise.

Jij en het Paradijs

[...] With cities, it is as with dreams: everything imaginable can be dreamed, but even the most unexpected dream is a rebus that conceals a desire or, its reverse, a fear. Cities, like dreams, are made of desires and fears, even if the thread of their discourse is secret, their rules are absurd, their perspectives deceitful and everything conceals something else [...]

Invisible Cities, Italo Calvino, pagina 4

Since the dawn of time - and in every country - we've dreamed of a perfect, happier place. A place we once lived and want to return to. A distant place, both in time and space, which has always been a model for the development of cultures and society. Through our collective effort and reflection can we reach our complex society and bring it closer to Paradise.

Following up on previous exhibitions, we, de bever architecten, are creating a platform for discussion and debate during the Dutch Design Week. Our exhibition encourages people to share their thoughts and/or sharpen their opinions. This year we invite you to join the conversation about Jij en het Paradijs and express in your own words what Paradise means to you.

We invite you to step inside our pattern of arrows and follow the multiple directions to Paradise. Ask yourself: what is Paradise? Where is Paradise? What is the value of Paradise? Who are you a Paradise?

These questions will take you back in time, through different countries and cultures, how the idea of paradise was transformed throughout history - reaching even the modern era. This approach allows us to share and grow the current Het heet, de kosmos, het paradijs, het oneindige waarin we geboren worden, leven en weer verdwijnen. Alleen het levende stult is te beïnvloeden, te veranderen, zodat het een paradijs op aarde wordt.

Laten we hopen en zorgen dat we kunnen zeggen:
"Le paradijs, c'est les autres"
Ajate

Paradijs is een concept. Een idee.
Een plek waar verdraagzaamheid is. Vrijheid voor groei.
Zonder regels, zonder voor in gezondheid, alles mag.
Of het echt bestaat weet ik niet zeker.
Misschien is het wel iets dat van binnen zit. In mijzelf. Soms zie ik er een glimp van, soms ben ik de weg er naar toe weer kwijt. Maar vraag of laat vraag ik die glimp weer op. Daar zit het.

Paradise is a peaceful place with warmth, love, community & health.
Paradise is enough responsibility to keep you grounded but enough freedom to let you explore. Paradise is knowing everything will be okay. Paradise is just outside the city center where the leaves rustle and the children laugh and play but walking distance from your favorite coffee with your best friend. Paradise is home but also home away from home.

Some call this world a hot paradise. All pleasures, some, with the love on our hearts and shared on love.

Paradise is where I can do whatever I want

I love.
